Increase anticipated in room' board rates

By JIM PHILLIPS
University Staff Writer

A small increase in room and board fees is expected next year, University officials disclosed Wednesday.

Executive Vice President Ben Lewis said in light of rising costs of food and other items, he anticipated a modest increase.

He added any increase in rates would be more than necessary to meet living costs. Lewis was speaking in a recent Bag Luncheon along with President Dallin Oaks, Director of Housing DeLyle Barton and Director of Student Services Wells P. Cloward.

Cloward explained the possible increase producing a list of food prices. He noted in the last six months seafood prices have increased eight per cent, dairy prices 11 per cent, pork prices 17 per cent, beef prices 19 per cent, dry goods five per cent and canned goods eight per cent.

During the hour-long session, questions were directed at the guests concerning housing contracts and continental breakfasts.

One student was concerned with not being permitted to withdraw from a housing contract without losing $40. Barton indicated there are four areas where one may withdraw from a contract with no penalty.

In the event of a mission, marriage, education into the service and health problems, students are not required to forfeit the $40, he said.

According to Pres. Lewis, a student should make a decision before a housing contract is signed because "we will hold you to the contract." Holding students to the housing contracts they sign "is the way to teach students the way of life—that a contract really means something," said Lewis.

President Oaks said the housing contract is a two-way agreement, and the University is bound not change the room and board rate during the period of the contract.

Energy shortage

Crisis not felt in Provo
BY LAUREL SORENSEN
University Staff Writer

President Nixon warned yesterday that the American people must recognize the "stark fact" that the nation is using up more energy than it is producing. In Provo, officials say the energy crunch will not be felt.

The end of cold weather means the end of a threatened pinch, according to local Texaco distributor Max Eggertsen. "The problem was in January and the first part of February, especially in the case of diesel fuel, but we got by with a bit of scrounging."

Mountain Fuel Supply Co. has "no

According to figures released today, there has been a marked decline in the attendance at Forum and Devotional assemblies since the beginning of the 1972-73 school year.

BYU President Dallin Oaks has expressed concern about the attendance drop and is currently discussing ways to encourage students to attend.

The average assembly count for Devotionals from Sept. 1972 to Feb. 1973 was 6,969, while the attendance average for the Forum assemblies from Oct. to Feb. was 3,777.

J. Lavar Bateman, Chairman of the Forum Speaker Committee, said that Forum figures would have been lower were it not for the Oct. 24 appearance of Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew before a record crowd of 15,537.

Next highest Forum crowd was 4,176 for TV personality Eddie Albert. In chronological order, the following are other Forum figures: Homecoming assembly, 3,837; Founder's Day Assembly, 2,774; May a Angelou, 2,831; ASBYU assembly, 1,258; Dr. Maxwell Maltz, 3,010;

Christmas Assembly, 1,615; Nicholas Nardi, 1,438; Harrison Salisbury, 1,507; and Carol Lynn Pearson, 3,747.

Bateman said that one reason for low attendance at Forum may be that it can no longer be counted for academic credit, making it a voluntary matter to attend.

Another reason, Bateman said, is the heavy time demand on students. "Unless it is a habit to go to the assemblies," he said, "one must stop and make a decision whether or not to go to the Marriott Center." He added that it is five minutes farther to the Marriott Center than it was to the Smith Fieldhouse, where the assemblies were previously held.

Bateman felt the only way to raise assembly count is to have a controversial speaker or one who has made a "big name" for himself.

The higher Devotional attendance, he said, was a result of a "church leader speaking to a church school. By the very nature of this relationship there is unified natural interest in the speaker."

Reflection of affection

When Morris Linton celebrates Valentine's Day, he sees no small stir. Linton, a student from Salt Lake City, decided to remind Jane Hamilton, and the entire neighborhood of the occasion yesterday by stringing between light posts a colossal valentine. Jane, a senior from Florida, couldn't miss the greeting on her way to school. The semi-festive day found Provo replete with cruising florists trucks, messages scrawled on windows and heart-shaped edibles.

Assembly attendance on decline

By DOTTIE EULER

Crisis not felt in Provo

foreseeable crises," according to spokesman Arrell Christensen. "At no time during the winter did our homeowners suffer. They were our first concern," he said.

Nixon's warning was, however, prompted by a far different situation across the nation which has led him to submit to Congress today what he calls a "new and far more comprehensive energy message containing wide range initiatives to insure necessary supplies of energy at acceptable economic and environmental costs."

Denver high schools were scheduled for a three-day break because of the fuel shortage. Factories in several states were forced to shut down. Truck and bus companies reported receiving 25 per cent less diesel oil than needed. In spite of the high priority on homeowner fuel, several areas were without heat. California was scheduled for gasoline rationing. Many BYU students felt the pinch at Christmas when, flying from Kennedy Airport in New York, they were forced down for refueling stops because Kennedy was too short on fuel to fill airliner tanks.

The U.S. comprises six per cent of the world's population, but consumes 33 per cent of the world's energy. Studies show that it wastes a full 50 per cent.

Eggertsen felt that the oil shortage was a direct result of refinery shortages. "No oil refineries have been remodeled, built, or enlarged recently. The increase of oil by five to six per cent per year has not been matched by refinery capacity," he said. "The environmentalists, particularly in prevention of off-shore drilling and the Alaskan pipe-line, have not helped the situation much."

Government and industry spokesmen say domestic oil fields are producing at maximum efficiency and cannot be pumped faster without ruining future productivity. Quotas have been lifted on the imports of foreign oil, but it is said that the major need still lies in the growth of U.S. refineries.

Even though natural gas is considered more efficient than oil, the vast 15 year reserves at Mountain Fuel prevented their homeowners from feeling any shortage, even though industrial usage is tight. "We have better reserves than the nation as a whole," said Christensen. "We have just found a new field in southwest Wyoming and although we have not fully explored it, the possibilities look excellent."

Freedom tastes bittersweet

(AP)—A few of the returning prisoners of war will find that freedom has a bittersweet taste.

The wives of at least two of the men released Monday in the first batch of men freed from North Vietnamese and Viet Cong prison camps have gotten divorces; a third started separation proceedings but decided to hang on a little longer.

Mrs. Garland Kramer of Tulsa, Okla., disclosed Tuesday that she had obtained a divorce last June from her husband, an Air Force captain shot down in January 1967. The divorce was granted in Tulsa on the grounds of incompatibility.

"I knew I couldn't go back," she said. "We're grown apart."

Mrs. Kramer's attorney works for Rep. James Jones, D-Okl., who said she had continued to write and send packages to Kramer while he was a prisoner of war.

SHE EXPLAINED the divorce in a special letter she sent the Air Force for delivery to Kramer after his release.

She said that, when he left for Vietnam, he had said "she was docile," but, since then, has studied politics, religion and been active in school and with their two children, Todd, 9, and Cynthia, 8.

The divorce, sought on March 24, 1972, and granted on June 30, is being contested by Kramer's father, who lives in Denver, Colo. He asked the courts to set it aside until his son's return.

Also facing a divorce is Cmdr. Everett Alvarez of Santa Clara, Calif., who was shot down Aug. 5, 1964, the first American pilot captured in the Vietnam war.

Two years ago, Alvarez' wife, Tongie, obtained a divorce and married another man. "I just fell out of love with Everett," she said last October when the divorce was revealed.

She identified her husband as "Andy" and refused to disclose where she, her new spouse and their daughter were living.

Alvarez' mother, Mrs. Soledad Alvarez of San Jose, Calif., sent the news of the divorce to her son before it was granted. She said he wrote back: "I hope her present husband loves her as much as I did."

THE WIFE OF Navy Cmdr. Raymond Vohden started divorce proceedings last year. She halted the proceedings with a peace talk, remarried and said Monday she wants to resume the marriage.

Discussing a call from her husband, who was shot down on April 3, 1965, Bonnye Vohden said: "The phone rang and he said, 'What the hell's going on?' I told him, 'Golly, you sound just as mean as ever!'"

The Vohdens have two children,

Raymond Jr., 11, and Connye, 10.

"I don't know what things will be two months from now," Mrs. Vohden said. "We'll work it out day by day. He's so excited and happy that I'm feeling that way too."

Nature can't beat it

Canyon created in a day

It takes Mother Nature millions of years to create a canyon but the BYU Geology Department can do it in a day. Though it might be good to fool with Mother Nature, the Geology Department has one up on her.

During this week, the department is recreating an evolution process of a stream channel with the use of a "stream table." This table shows the erosion of a stream over 10 million years.

In the past, the geology classes have made petrolied sketches of the changes that take place. This week, Dr. Morris S. Peterson is taking time-lapse photographs of the erosion process. These pictures will eliminate the student sketches and aid in a better class presentation of the process.

Under the direction of Dr. W. Kenneth Hamblin, this table can also simulate tidal wave erosion. After the land evolution has been completed later this week, students will be able to study the development of the ocean bottom that has taken place.

Another possibility for better understanding the evolution of the earth is planned, according to Dr. Hamblin. Later this year a thin mist spray will be used to simulate the evolution process of a whole landscape.

Students wanting to see how the Grand Canyon or the Colorado River delta has been created may stop in at the Stream Table in 145 ESC. Mother Nature can't beat it.

Home study lessons

needed by March 1

Students planning to use Home Study credit towards April graduation are reminded that they must have all lessons and examinations completed before March 1 to guarantee graduation deadline processing.

All lessons must be submitted before the final exam will be given for any course, and students may turn in more than three lessons per week only with their instructor's permission.

Examinations for all courses will be held at the Home Study Office, 210 HRCB, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Students must make an appointment for the examination at least one day in advance.

Adherence to these policies will insure the greatest efficiency in service to the graduating student, according to the Home Study Department.

Legal aspects of marriage shouldn't cloud sacredness

By JOHN BALMFORTH
University Staff Writer

A temple marriage is a beautiful and rewarding experience, but too often says President Harold G. Oscar of the Provo Temple, the couples get too caught up in the mechanical aspects of the ceremony.

"Marriage in the temple is a sacred experience," said Pres. Clark, "but sometimes the couple follows the legal aspects of clothing and the official checking and recording procedures to submerge the spirituality. All of these are important but the principles involved should take priority," Pres. Clark added.

"If the preparatory steps are taken care of early, the bride and groom may then concentrate more fully upon the spiritual and overly aspects of temple marriage."

Pres. Clark explained the preparatory steps include getting the recommendation, obtaining a marriage license, making an appointment at the temple and counseling with one's bishop or branch president.

In some cases said Pres. Clark an ecclesiastical recommend or failure to schedule a time for the marriage has resulted in a delay of the ceremony.

He said couples who want a special day or hour to be married should be sure and make arrangements with the temple early. This may be done in person, by letter or telephone.

Pres. Clark said the temple staff has compiled a checklist of things which have to be done before the marriage can be performed and encouraged those who are interested in being married in the Provo Temple to come to the temple and pick one up.

"Once these things are out of the way," added Pres. Clark, "the couple is ready to enjoy the experience and more nearly get the vision of what temple marriage is all about."

A special tenth anniversary edition of the Wye Magazine is available at the English Office, 1246 JKB, and will soon be featured in the Bookstore, according to Mike Palmer, associate editor of the publication.

Cost of the magazine is $1. Students with English Circle cards may purchase them for 50 cents in the English Office.

The official university creative writing publication, Wye Magazine has combined the usual two issues of the year into a single issue "of unusually high quality," said Palmer.

Contained in this year's issue are new entries in poetry and fiction along with outstanding entries from previous editions. Winners of such competitions as the Mayhew Short Story Contest and the last year's Fine Arts Ball Competition are also included, along with submissions from faculty members Dr. Arthur Henry King and Dr. Clinton Larson.

Contributions by noted artists Trevor Southey and Gary Smith will also be featured.

BYU bell heard again, victory sounds will ring

The "Bell of the Y" lives once more and if BYU basketball fortunes continue, its familiar tone will be heard across campus this year.

The "Old Y Bell," which symbolizes athletic supremacy, was pulled from its resting place by a spirited student following the dedication of the Marriott Center recently.

The bell suffered from its fall, according to Greg McMurdie, president of the Intercollegiate Knights, the organization which maintains the bell. It suffered from numerous cracks as well as a gaping hole near its top. The expense to fix the bell is prohibitive."

At the time of the bell's accident, its future was uncertain, but thanks to Marv Roberson, an athletic trainer, a new bell has been constructed.

A 100-year-old bell, donated by Roberson to the University, will help continue a BYU tradition.

Roberson's great-great grandfather built a Methodist Church in Missouri around 1875. Many years later, the church was demolished in order to make way for a new church building. Roberson's ancestors rescued the bell before it could be destroyed.

The bell was brought west, since that time Roberson had the opportunity to obtain this relic of the past.

According to McMurdie, the bell has not yet been hung from the bell tower. For the game this weekend against UTEP and New Mexico, the bell will sit in the base of the tower in the Marriott Center parking lot.

Presently, the IK's are in the process of obtaining permission to raise funds for two projects which concern the future of the bell. First, a glass case to house the old bell. The bell will be displayed in either the Marriott Center or in the ELWC. Second, to check into the possibility of moving the bell closer to the Marriott Center, if this is feasible, thus financing the construction of a new tower.

As BYU approaches its centennial year, a 100-year-old bell will continue to tell of the Cougars prowess on the basketball court and on the football field.

'World of Dance'

Annual program begins tonight

Five BYU dance organizations will participate in the fourth annual "World of Dance" which begins tonight in the de Jong Concert Hall of the HFAC.

The dance program will continue Friday and Saturday evenings with tickets for all performances still available at the Music Ticket Office. Curtain time each night is 8 p.m.

Participating in the event will be the Theatre Ballet, Orchiesis (modern), the International Folk Dancers and the Ballroom Dance Team. They will be joined this year by the Cougarettes, girls' precision marching team.

Throughout the year each dance organization appears separately in various concerts, but the "World of Dance" is the only time when all forms are brought together on the same program.

The Ballroom Dance Team, which has won the prestigious British Open Amateur Modern Ballroom Dancing Formation Team championship, will perform "Cali," in a combination of grace and romance. They also will dance "Cha-Cha" and "Five," which won applause in the Christmas concert.

BUY's famous International Folk Dancers, who have toured Europe seven times, will be seen in the Smoky Mountain Clog; "Kozachok," a flirtatious harvest dance; and "Hepak," reflecting the emotion of the Ukrainian people.

The first American folkdance team to represent the United States in Europe, the BYU Folk Dancers have earned a reputation for excellence both on and off the stage in almost every country of Europe. They have appeared before millions on television of several countries, and on one tour danced 62 concerts in 14 nations, including shows for royalty.

Two million years ago there were no true men on earth.

The modern dance section, represented by Orchiesis, will be seen in "Games," an abstract look in line and vigorous activity; "After Moonrise," a jazz work commissioned by Orchiesis and created by Loanne Moreton of San Jose; "Maslessistik," with all the properties of elastic bands; and "Soda Pop Pop," which turns to the nostalgia of eras past.

This group also will add a new dimension to the show with 33 tap dancers under the direction of Cathy Herbert, winner of many Canadian championships, in a medley of Cole Porter tunes.

Theater Ballet will contribute "Crown of Diamonds," a difficult

It did happen here

Denver high schools were on a three-day week to conserve a fading oil supply; factories in West Virginia, Iowa, Illinois and Mississippi shut down as fuel tanks went dry and hundreds of homeowners in the winter chill of Des Moines anxiously awaited word on incoming heating oil shipments.

Grain was stranded on barges in the Ohio River because of the lack of diesel fuel. At New York's John F. Kennedy Airport, fuel for jets was so scarce that many plane's scheduled non-stop flights to the west coast were effected; intermediate stops had to be made to fill depleted tanks.

The nation's railroads warned continued shortages could disrupt their service. And a gasoline shortage is possibly foreseen for this summer.

This grim outline of fuel shortage events seems like a chapter from the Sinclair Lewis book, "It Can't Happen Here." Why has the nation complacently waited for the shortage? Who's to blame? What can be done now and what about the future?

The massive 1965 East Coast blackout stands as evidence that some type of power problem existed, but a private, high-level White House study in 1966 concluded unalarmingly, "the nation's total energy resources seem adequate to satisfy required expectations through the remainder of the century at costs near present levels." As recently as three years ago, the President's task force on oil imports predicted that the U.S. would not have to import more than 27 per cent of its oil by 1980—that total has now been surpassed.

A combination of circumstances may have triggered the power crunch: the need of transport to move grain to ports for shipment to the U.S.S.R.; the wet autumn that demanded artificial drying of millions of tons of grain; the unseasonably cold weather in the midwestern states; the environmentalists, who pushed for cleaner air, stricter pollution controls on 1973 car models which cut down on mileage and required more gas consumption; and the court fights over proposed new off-shore refineries in Delaware and Maine.

However, much of the blame can be credited to two sources: the lack of government foresight and preparation and the extremist philosophy of environmental groups in impeding such projects as the Alaskan pipeline, as well as court fights over new oil refineries and emission control equipment.

Now we must rely upon fossil fuels: coal, oil and natural gas. The next dozen years will be the crucial ones. After that nuclear energy plants will be able to take over the brunt of our fuel shortage.

Another culprit can also be identified in the person of the national oil and gasoline companies who for profit and competition have jeopardized the energy outlets to the public.

In his national radio address yesterday, President Nixon declared, "We must face up to a stark fact. We are now consuming more energy than we produce." He submitted that a more comprehensive energy message will be delivered to Congress whereby research and development can be expanded.

Again we see that national priorities must be reshuffled. Not only is this current energy shortage hitting us at home, but it can also change foreign diplomacy with the Arab nations who control most of the world's oil reserves.

RELIABLE SOURCE?

Editor:

The article ("Feb. 7) distinguishing the validity of Vitamin E by Rolf Koehler was extremely well-written so well-written, in fact, it could have been done by a professional writer. An unformed reader, such as myself, would have found it convincing, but most BYU students are of a different caliber.

I am not sure which phrases as "scientific studies show conclusively," "evidence concludes," "subsequent experiments" and so on, are used by many others. They seem to add credibility to such an article, but the "as" and "subsequent" are not mentioned. There was a single causal comment by Dr. Koehler: "You can live without Vitamin E, but you can do enough of it without really trying," which seems to me to be a statement that has been taken out of a more detailed context. Otherwise, it is too vague and general.

Manly everybody is different: "For one man believed he may eat all day long, and another with a weak heart, he may not have what would satisfy him that eat not, and let him that eat not eat, for this is the will of God hath received him..." Romans 14:3.

Today even "him that eat not with meat" (here) is part of a generation that is a great distance from the days of the fathers. We have got what he needed out of "daily bread" without the depiction and description of the bread as the healthiest of our foods. And how many of us are getting more of green vegetables, citrus fruits, etc. etc.

Dr. Evan Shute and associates, studies of Vitamin E, "For ailing and healthy people alike, Vitamin E is a valuable material. There was a single causal comment by Dr. Koehler: "You can live without Vitamin E, but you can do enough of it without really trying," which seems to me to be a statement that has been taken out of a more detailed context. Otherwise, it is too vague and general.

oostaining rate that cannot be exceeded.

Mr. Koehler referred vaguely to subjects that were "deprived" of Vitamin C and those with no sources given—we don't even know if the subjects were really deprived.

He also said that "we should believe that a healthy subject could be deprived of Vitamin C for a month or two without harm." But we should believe that a healthy subject could be deprived of "apparent physical impairment" but not death. This is not the same as perfect measure of our creation as we can. Does anybody have reason to be concerned about the safety of the energy quotient and vitality of his bloodclotting?

That is the question. That's the reason why it is not quite so mysterious that Vitamin E is "extremely valuable to the body." It is not just the fats all over, and Vitamin E is a direct blood nutrient, but I know of no reputable nutritionists that have said Vitamin E or any other nutrient is a "cure-all." I am not sure that I am being too harsh with Brother Koehler. It is possible that he had been getting information from unreliable sources. Such misinformation is one of the things that keep America eating processed food from commercial drives.

Another problem is the graft in the American Medical Association. The AMA has a tradition of giving out facts about Vitamin C and its aid in the prevention of scurvy, etc., and they would like us not to believe that Vitamin E is so wonderful for the prevention of the disease with colds and heat burns and the doctor would not use it.

But it's interesting to know of all the claims that are made about the body without prescribing it for their patients.

Some people, people assume that an M.D. or even a bichemist, is the place to go for nutritional information.

This is not true even though the doctor may know more than the layman understands correctly, and he may be able to give you a few weeks of nutrional meal planning training.

It is true, however, that there is very little scientific studies shown. Vitamin E because many recent studies done in the U.S.A. have been properly compensated in the 90's vitamins and even essential minerals, such as calcium, magnesium, zinc, iodine, etc., or mineral fadings Vitamin E, for example, must be added to the diet. It is not the natural organic Vitamin E that most artificially derived acetone does.

M. Koehler is again in error. He says that you can take Vitamin E or a vitamin or supplement of any kind, cure-all, but only to give us what he probably means from our re-dicta.

President Nixon claims cutbacks in welfare programs and disbanding of the much disputed Office of Economic Opportunity curb inflation. But many in Congress, and in state legislatures at w many welfare program administrators, predict adverse effects Nixon's idealistic caring at their favorite programs.

LOCALLY, Nixon's whittling is "crippeling the helping hand" o Utah County Community Action Program. It receives funds the OEO and aids the disadvantaged and minority groups through progr such as Head Start, Operation Mainstream and Neighborhood Y Corps. In addition to this program, the trimming of funds will e home improvement and HUD loans, loans to farmers, libraries, sun recreation programs and food stamps.

Mrs. Moya T. Told, executive director of the Community A Program in Utah County, suggests the cutback in funds "will leave people completely destitute with no place to turn."

In addition to the suffering of low income persons in Utah Co. Mrs. Told predicted other county residents would suffer because "o people who can't get themselves off of welfare." (See detail page 17.)

Mrs. Told's divinations are better founded than the usual prophes of doom. Immediate fund shortages to programs which have a building and gaining impetus over the years will bring devest results. Something needs to be done to stop the bleeding and to the wounds.

LDS CHURCH leaders have asserted many times that individual initiative and free enterprise are preferable to the government do mean of handling the welfare problem. Now, while the need is g Church leaders should convert their members to "doing unto oil by and doing this convert the less fortunate to belief in pr industry.

Quorums need to seriously make an effort to find and make available to everyone, including the young, Relief Society men need to begin giving "real" compassionate service. The possibility infinite and already proposed as part of the Church's programs.

If Latter-day Saints would live their religion, the poor would ha "place to turn" to Church, to family and to themselves.

Pledges for pages

The Student Development Association has enlisted the cooperation of influential men far away from Utah. Here, student leaders discuss plans in Washington D.C. with George Romney, former Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

Sometimes answering a telephone can be pretty expensive. But students are cooperative, boosting the library fund by thousands of dollars each night the telefund asks for donations.

When the J. Reuben Clark Library was built, no one was anticipating a student body of over 25,000. The proposed library addition will offer more students places to study as well as get surplus books out of warehouses and back to the bookshelves.

Students, townspeople and businesses will be in the limelight this weekend for their efforts in aiding the BYU library project via the Daily Universe Novelthon.

The fastest novel in history will be written, under the eye of the national news media, as a gesture of community goodwill in erecting a library adequate for BYU and local needs. Contributions for the project will be accepted from those desirous of aiding the Student Development Association's library project. Any type of contribution per page of the novel—dollars, dimes, pennies—or even a flat amount may be submitted for the project.

Interested students, local citizens or even dormitory groups or apartments may phone in pledges by calling Rich Humphreys, vice president of campus activities for fund, at 224-0454. Those wishing to pledge or make contributions at the scene may do so—beginning 4 p.m. Friday at Clark's, 245 N. University Ave.

Total Library Fund collections from students now total $278,560.40, or nearly a third of the Student Development Fund's goal of $1 million. A concentrated effort in the next few months will assure success of the program.

It seems the students of BYU are growing acutely more aware of the appealing aspects of academia. Unfortunately the current situation at the University is not conducive to such campus movements. Those who have ventured into the library report a maze of overfull bookshelves, cramped study carrels, and twelve-to-a-table reference areas. Students have complained they are tired of heating around the books.

With five times as many volumes and twice the student body, BYU has come a long way since 1961—except in this crucial aspect of University life. The J. Reuben Clark Library is able to accommodate only nine per cent of the student body—a figure disgraced by the national standard stipulation of 25 per cent.

Although the library boasts the first editions of the King James version of the Bible (1611), Dante in Italian and Plato in Greek, the building's current seating capacity is 300 less than its original design.

The library may be the home of a superb collection of electronic recordings, sepia-toned photographs and quill-penned letters of early Utah history, yet only five per cent of BYU's 1,000-plus faculty are accommodated in faculty research spaces.

Even with the graduate-level enrollment increasing 40 per cent since 1967, the library has remained the humble structure on the quad rapidly becoming dwarfed by campus expansion.

The University has been given the challenge to raise three million dollars for this much-needed cause (one million of this is the direct responsibility of the student body).

Whether through a telefund drive, payroll pledges or this weekend's Novelthon, both students and non-students should make the small financial sacrifices necessary to assure that this University becomes the great school it is destined to become.

Revenue sharing will fund 13 local projects

Utah County's chunk of the State Revenue sharing fund is gathering interest in the bank waiting to finance 13 different county projects, County Commissioner Verl Stone said yesterday.

Stone was speaking in a public meeting to inform county residents of the plans for the Revenue Sharing money. He indicated that the county had been "planning some of these projects for two or three years. It has been the lack of funds that has held us up."

State federal checks totaling $871,934 have been given to the county. "Most of the money that has been budgeted will be held until July," said Stone.

Total budget plans call for only $515,046 of the total $871,934 given to Utah County. However, two large projects, renovation of county buildings and repair of railroad approaches, will each cost $100,000 or more, depending on estimates. Special funds are also being used to bring the County Health Department up to date. Some of the Federal Funds are being used immediately to purchase new road equipment, the commissioner said.

BYU plans no 'guaranteed tuition'

BYU will not go the way of colleges who guarantee an unchangeable tuition for its new students, says the office of the treasurer.

The concept has been adopted by a number of colleges and universities around the country. It promises relief to students and their parents from soaring tuition costs.

Entering freshmen are given a guarantee that their tuitions will not increase during their four years of study.

With tuition rising by as much as 10 percent annually at some schools in recent years, it is estimated that a student could save about $1,000 during his college career.

Officials cite two major advantages of guaranteed or fixed tuition: it should lead to an increase in the number of freshmen entering a school, and a decrease in the number of upperclassmen transferring to other schools before they get their degrees.

Officials of private schools also believe that more parents would be willing to send their children to private colleges or universities if they knew what the exact cost would be and make their plans accordingly to it.

At least one college will adopt a five-year guaranteed tuition plan in the fall of 1973. This will give the students an additional advantage because more and more students want to work, travel or study abroad.

The five-year plan will enable them to do this for a year and will encourage them to return to the school to finish their education.

'Breaking God's law'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholics have been warned by church leaders that they face excommunication if they undergo or perform an abortion.

"Those who obtain an abortion, those who persuade others to have an abortion, and those who perform the abortion procedure are guilty of breaking God's law," a pastoral message of the National Council of Catholic Bishops said this week.

Excommunication means that the subject cannot receive the sacraments.

A recent decision of the U.S. Supreme Court had the effect of legalizing abortion.

The most primitive mammals are the egg-laying echidna and the duck-billed platypus.

Industrial park to use students

A new research and development park at 820 N. 1300 W. in Provo will offer students and professors an opportunity to work for private industry during their spare time.

City Commissioner Russel Grange said this week that BYU involvement was one of the ideas the officials had in mind in developing the park.

Other schools and universities have such parks nearby to take advantage of the talented people from the campus. "We want it to look nice too," said Grange. "It will have a campus look rather than an industrial look." There will be no outdoor storage, and only one-third of a site can be used for buildings. Appropriate landscaping will be emphasized throughout the park to help enhance the neighborhood, Grange said.

Most of the land was obtained from the Utah State Road Commission in a trade for property that the city owned in Provo Canyon. Several sites have been sold in the park and a building has been completed by Rollins Brown and Gunnell of Provo. They plan to use the site to design and test for their civil engineering projects.

The Hartley Research

Laboratories, Inc. of Orem, plan to be operational by July 1 of this year. Their present services include assaying mineral elements and trace minerals in hair, urine, blood and other biological and agricultural samples. Dr Reed M. Izatt, Dr. James J. Christensen, and Dr. Delbert J. Eatough, who have all done trace element analysis at BYU, will be associated with the firm. One student has been hired, and a few more will be needed as growth occurs.

...there'll always be an England

LONDON (AP) — More and other jobs, social progress, value for money, security from the womb to the tomb?

Or another 1929 Great Depression, with mass unemployment, hunger marches and general unrest?

These are the political issues at the heart of the current international financial crisis, the seventh since Britain devalued the pound in 1967.

But since then, since governments sometimes have treated money troubles as if they were the cause, not the symptom, of the world's economic imbalance.

Other times they have dithered and dallied for fear of taking drastic remedies that would hurt their political prospects.

But whether it has been America's Lyndon Johnson or Richard Nixon, France's Charles de Gaulle or Georges Pompidou, Britain's Harold Wilson or Edward Heath, or Japan's Eisaku Sato or Kakuei Tanaka, just about every national leader of modern times has tended to put the interests of his nation above those of his overseas partners.

The familiar clash of national interests is clearly detectable in the current money crisis.

America's leaders, their European allies and the Japanese share the same basic political aims and ideals. All are dedicated to democracy as a form of government. All are determined to resist the spread of communism. But some seems to be sure how, united, they can reconcile these political objectives with fair trading practices and a fair sharing of the defense burden.

THE NIXON administration,

Canadian diplomat combines charm, hard-nosed approach

SAIGON (AP) — Michel Gauvin, the first chairman of Vietnam's international peace-keeping force, combined the world charm of a native Quebec with a seasoned diplomat's hard-nosed approach to peace at any time.

He is an optimist who dreams of peace, but a pragmatist in working to achieve it. He is outspoken in English, French and Quebec's own colorful combination of both.

Almost from the moment of cease-fire 10 days ago, Ambassador Gauvin has been the prime mover and doer on the International Commission for Control and Supervision, the man in a hurry to get prisoner exchanges started and observation teams into the field.

With the help of Indonesia, Canada, in the person of Gauvin, persuaded Poland and Hungary, the other nations on the international body, that they could get rolling even while awaiting for Viet Cong and North Vietnamese to join Americans and South Vietnamese on the Joint Military Commission in organizing transportation and security in the countryside.

"There are two distinct philosophies at the beginning," Gauvin said Wednesday in an interview. "One was the technical argument that the commission could not act without the cooperation of all four signatories to the cease-fire agreement.

"THE OTHER was the approach of practicability: that regardless of the fact that the Joint Military Commission was not yet functioning, steps could be taken like setting up regional headquarters, that would put us ahead when they were ready. It was a question of whether the commission could just deal with two parties of former belligerents instead of four. Canada stood on the side of practicability."

Gauvin declined to reveal which two countries opted for the hard technical line. But sources inside the Indonesian contingent indicated their chief delegate, Lt. Gen. Dhamono, quickly lined up with Canada.

The Canadian ambassador's approach, steamrolling ahead without waiting for a secretary, reflects Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's warning that Canada's forces are in Vietnam to "observe a peace, not watch a war" and that the troops will be withdrawn in 60 days if there is no satisfactory progress.

GAUVIN HAS stressed that if there is dissension in the commission over cease-fire violations, prisoner exchanges or any issue, Canada will file its own minority report and tell the world why.

"We are not going to contribute to making this commission impotent for the sake of presenting a united front or for the sake of preserving the rule of unanimity," he said in the interview.

for instance, has been telling Japan it must liberalize its import policy further. To do so would help bridge the huge gap in Japanese-American trade.

The Americans, perhaps less vehemently, also are insisting the nine members of the European Common Market should quit discriminating against U.S. food and other imports from America.

The Japanese and the Europeans repeatedly complain that the United States is a sinner, too. They point to various internal — meaning non-tariff — barriers against foreign trade.

All this sort of thing is due for some hard negotiation at a world trade conference beginning Sept. 1.

In the field of defense, too, the Americans feel the Japanese and Europeans could and should do more. Both live under the protection of the U.S. nuclear umbrella. Japan, by the constitution, the United States forced on it, has its military forces committed to internal defense only. The Europeans, 28 years after World War II, dread the day that the 300,000-man U.S. garrison in Europe may be reduced.

YET THERE are few signs that either the Japanese or the Europeans are ready to boost their defense spending by any sizable extent. Heath said in Washington recently that U.S. troops are in Europe as much for America's defense as for Europe's. He added the reminder that, for every American soldier in Europe, there are 10 European soldiers.

Issue: Three months ago I took my watch to a jeweler to have it cleaned. When I got it back, it looked worse. I took it back again and again. They have it now and they have had it for some time. When I go to get it they keep putting me off.

Answer: Our investigator called the jeweler's and they said they would get in touch with you. Well, they did not. So we called again and spoke to someone else—still no action. Answer: The shop in Provo refused to cooperate, however, the main office in Salt Lake received your letter and they agree with you. They will replace the lens without cost.

Canadian coins worth zero on Brigham Young campus

Canadian coins aren't worth a red cent on the BYU campus.

"We are not to take in Canadian coins or currency and we do not give it out," said the Bookstore assistant cashier.

Cashiers at the Cougars do not take Canadian coins either.

"We don't accept them," said one coed "we had a meeting and again were reminded of the policy of not taking in or giving out Canadian coins. During the last two years I've seen probably only six coins."

Tom Hunziker, Game Center attendant commented, "We don't take any Canadian currency in and if you don't get any you can't give it out. Once in awhile something may slip in." We set it aside because the banks can't accept it."

Occasionally, Canadian coins will slip by cashiers but during a recent survey taken, students have felt that there is no problem.

A sophomore in elementary education from Denver said, "I haven't noticed any Canadian coins on campus and I haven't received any."

Bret Mitchell, a freshman in building construction from Burley, Idaho commented, "I haven't had any Canadian coins given to me here on campus but sometimes my Canadian roommates hold change in their pockets."

Brother Ferlin Orton, University treasurer said, "The cashiers are not to deal in Canadian coins. If students want to exchange them for American currency, they are to go to the banks. At the beginning of the year we send information to Canadian students asking them to exchange their money before coming to campus."

Clocking a tardy professor will not help the anxious-to-leave BYU student.

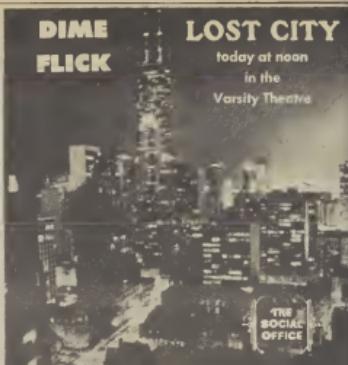

"There is no published University policy on this," said L. Robert Webb, administrative assistant to the Academic Vice-president.

The idea of a waiting period for tardy professors may have come from other campuses, as many have such rulings.

"Because of the faculty and student relationships," said Mr. Webb, "there has never been a real problem. Most students have used their common sense, and most teachers won't leave their classes hanging. Usually teachers send over their secretary or someone to notify the class if a lateness occurs."

Cougars dominate singles

John Bennett of BYU serves in Wednesday tennis action.

Cougar netter John Bennett upset second-seeded Bruce Kleeger, also of BYU, 6-4, 7-5 in the semi-final round of the second annual BYU Invitational Tennis Tournament yesterday.

Bennett will face the winner of the semi-finals match between Chris Oates and Chris DeGraff at 3 p.m. today in the singles championship match.

Kleeger and Bennett advanced to the semi-finals Tuesday after defeating BYU's Jim Robbins and Utah's Dave Harmon respectively.

Harmon was the only non-Cougar to advance to the quarter-finals. The remainder of the singles matches have been dominated by BYU with Cougar fighting Cougars.

In other quarter-final action yesterday Oates clipped teammate Dwight Freights 7-6, 6-2. Also earning his way into the semi-final play was DeGraff as he downed Alex Hernandez 7-6, 6-2.

The Oates-DeGraff match was scheduled to begin at press time.

The University of Utah might have placed higher in the meet but the University's top-ranked Bill Benison and third-ranked Bob Schwarts did not compete. Benison had defeated BYU's Kleeger for the Salt Lake Indoor Tournament championship two weeks ago, reportedly had bronchitis, and Schwarts suffered a fractured collar bone while skiing.

In doubles play Oates and Hernandez beat the Redskins team of Jim Farren and Stojan Tomovich 6-4, 6-2, while Cougars Bennett and Jim Robbins passed up both earlier Drew Sweet and his partner Miles Marion 7-5, 6-4.

Bennett and Robbins were scheduled to meet Oates and Hernandez last night.

Sees instant replay reffing

Coach George Allen of the Washington Redskins said yesterday he expects to see officials use instant replay television to make decisions during National Football League games sometime in the future.

Allen also said he believes there could be only one week instead of the present two, between the last conference championship game and the Super Bowl.

In a talk at the National Press Club, Allen said the Redskins, one of the Super Bowl game to Miami, had four goals in the off-season — to improve the team, to keep its togetherness, to add 8,000 seats to the 53,000 in RFK Stadium and to train their sights on the NFL championship in Houston next season.

Swim meet

Today at 7 p.m. is the women's intramural swim meet deadline, reported intramural officials.

The Feb. 24 meet will have 13 events plus diving.

Competition will be divided into six divisions, with the top six places in each event receiving ribbons.

MVP Bench swings Reds' top salary

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench, moving fast in the wake of lung surgery he feared would end his career, has signed a $100,000-plus contract that apparently will make him the highest paid player in Cincinnati Reds' history.

The Reds confirmed the signing Tuesday after a team spokesman Englehardt refused the slugging catcher and swinging bachelier had signed for about $115,000.

General Manager Bob Howsam

ROME (AP) — When 75-year-old Rodolfo Macone went to the Social Security office, he was told, "You died last August. No pension for you." Officials said he would receive no money until he presented a notarized document certifying he was still alive.

said he had completed negotiations with Bench via telephone Monday.

"Bench won the Most Valuable Player award two of the last three years in 1970 and 1972," Howsam said, "and he has been suitably rewarded."

No details of the pact, other than the fact that it is for one year, were revealed.

Outfielder Pete Rose, who has not yet signed his 1973 contract, had been the highest paid Cincinnati player ever, earning a reported $107,500 last season.

Cowboy frosh Adams stars on boards, defense

DENVER (AP) — Jack Adams, a skinny, shy young man from Rock Springs, Wyo., is another in a long list of freshmen who have proved they have the ability to step in as a varsity starter.

Adams, 6-foot-6, 180-pounds, won the admiration of his coach, Wyoming's Bill Stramman, when he made his debut against Nebraska. He scored 11 points and grabbed eight rebounds from his forward position and the Cowboys won 65-59.

THE NEXT NIGHT, he got in the game again, scoring 14 points and claiming six rebounds against Denver. And he's been a star since then.

He admits he was scared when he first got into the Nebraska game.

"It was a different feeling than I have ever experienced before," he recalls. "But once I got in the game, I forgot what I was scared about and relaxed."

Stramman calls Adams the best prep. player to emerge from a Wyoming high school.

"Jack has done a tremendous job for us," says Stramman. "Our offense is not built for him to excel, but we have asked a lot of him defensively and in rebounding, and he's done a very consistent job."

Statistics reflect Adams' role this season as a rebounder and defensive specialist, who on offense is called upon to get the ball inside to center Rod Penner and forward Ken Morgan Clark.

He averages more than six points and six rebounds per game. His quickness on defense shows in the fact he's committed only 27 fouls in 18 games.

HE SAYS player quickness and size are the biggest changes from high school to college basketball.

"The action is much more physical on the boards, and I have had to work harder in practice on this phase of the game," he says.

Adams also draws as his defensive assignment the team's top forward. He says another freshman is the best player he's faced this year. That's Conn Norman of Arizona, the WAC's top scorer.

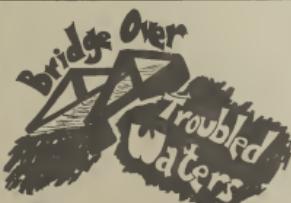

Adams has made another transition, academically.

"I'm majoring in mathematics and find I must budget my time and force myself to study," he says. "Math takes a lot of extra time and there's no one here to force me to study. You find out you're on your own in a hurry."

Cats meet Miners, NM

By DAVE CLEMENS
Universe Asst. News Editor

Sporting an eight-game winning streak beginning with Kresimir Cosic, a "very questionable" center with a chip on his shoulder, BYU will face UTEP in the Marriott Center tonight at 7:30 p.m. The Cougars will go against the country's 18th ranked team, New Mexico, Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Cosic "will probably play," said assistant coach Bob Fredrick, but a decision on starting the 6-11 postman will have to wait till game time tonight.

The 6-11 center hurt the wrist in the Colorado State match last weekend when he fell to the floor after being fouled. He went on to score 32 points, however.

THE POSSIBLE LOSS of Cosic comes at an inopportune moment for the Cats. UTEP, although missing its own center James Forbes to a knee injury, is a ball-control team that "may hold the ball if we start in a zone," according to BYU coach Glenn Potter.

"The Miners are usually more conservative on the road," said Potter, indicating a low-scoring contest was possible.

In the absence of Olympian Forbes, the 11-9 Miners will start an all-underclass lineup in an attempt to stop the Cougar attack.

Replacing Forbes at center will be 6-8 frosh Gary Brewster. Brewster averages 11.3 points per game and seven rebounds.

At forward is junior Gus Bailey, the team's leading scorer. Bailey, although hampered by a minor ankle injury, hits for 14.5 points per game. At the other front-line post is soph Ed Lynam, a 6-6 per game scorer.

Guarding are Beto Bustam and Frank Keton. Bustam, a defensive specialist with ball-stealing expertise, averages 7.7 per game. Keton is a soph averaging 8.2 per contest.

UTEP has slipped to a 2-7 WAC record after WAC sportswriters picked them to challenge BYU for the crown.

UTEP pressed BYU in El Paso earlier this season before losing 56-55 on its last-second sweep by Cosic. The loss was the Miners' first on their home court in three years of WAC play.

BYU holds a 5-4 edge in their series with UTEP, but tight games are the rule, not the exception, in this rivalry. Last year's games were decided by four points each; the Miners winning 73-69 in El Paso and the Cats 57-53 in two overtimes in Provo.

New Mexico owns the finest record in the WAC, 18-3 on the season. The Lobos swept past Arizona and Arizona State at home last weekend to remain only one game behind BYU in conference, 6-3 compared to the Cats' 7-2.

"Very quick, lots of depth," is Potter's characterization of New Mexico.

Tickets

Ticket distribution for Saturday's BYU-New Mexico game will take place today in the ELWC East Ballroom according to the last digit of student numbers as follows:

- 6-7 a.m.-4 p.m.
- 8-9 a.m.-4 p.m.
- 10-11 a.m.-4 p.m.
- 2-3 12:30-4 p.m.
- 4-5 2-4 p.m.

Mexico. "They have nine guys. Gabe Nava, Wendell Taylor, Mark Sniets and Rich Pokorski who can help them."

The Lobos will start a senior-dominated lineup.

At the pivot is Darryl Minniefield, a 6-8 senior from Chicago who is among the nation's leading field goal percentage shooters. Minniefield is high in the Lobos balanced attack with 12.9 points per game and 9.9 rebounds per game.

Helping out are guard Chester Fuller and forward Bernard Hardin with 12.7 scoring averages. They are followed by forward Don Ford and guard Tommy Roberts, averaging 7.9 and 7.6 respectively.

'Helping hand' may be crippled

By REVA CLEGG

University Staff Writer

The "helping hand" of the local Community Action Program may be seriously crippled by President Richard Nixon's budget cutbacks, according to Moya T. Told, executive director of the Utah County Community Action Agency.

Mrs. Told and President Nixon agreed that the Office of Economic Opportunity, which provides funds for the community Action Program, be disbanded. The President has also squandered OEO funds, climaxing several years of Congressional-administrative disagreement over the OEO.

The Community Action agency, located at 16 East Center in Provo, assists disadvantaged people and minority groups through special programs, including Head Start, Operation mainstream, Foster Grandparents, neighborhood Youth Corps, and volunteers in Action.

TWO YEARS AGO: the economic Opportunity Act, establishing funds for the OEO, was passed by Congress. President Nixon vetoed the act in the summer of 1971, but the Senate and the House passed it over his veto a year ago.

With the disbanding order, all

OEO funding will be cut off as of June 30, 1973.

Mrs. Told said that the Neighborhood Youth Corps and Operation Mainstream programs will be "hit pretty hard." The Youth Corps will be phased out completely, and Operation Mainstream will be cut 25 per cent, she explained.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD YOUTH CORPS has two divisions—the In-School unit, and the Out-of-School unit. Under these programs, disadvantaged student and non-student youth, ranging from ages 14 to 18, can find summer and winter employment.

Operation Mainstream, facing the 25 per cent cutback, is a program which provides on-the-job training for the disadvantaged who need job experience in order to find permanent work.

In addition to these effects, the OEO cutback will also affect home improvement and HUD loans, loans to farmers, libraries, summer recreation programs, and food stamps, according to Mrs. Told.

Programs which will not be as hard hit by the budget cutbacks include Head Start, described by Mrs. Told as a program to "develop mother and child so they can start to break poverty cycles," and the Foster Grandparent Program, and the Volunteers in Action, a community service organization which coordinates activities in rest homes, tutoring, and other social projects.

"THERE ARE TREMENDOUS financial implications here," Mrs. Told said of the cutbacks. "Some of these lost funds can be replaced by revenue sharing, but there is a terrific economic impact with lost jobs and money out of circulation."

Mrs. Told expressed dismay and sadness over the cutbacks. "I feel that the low income people of Utah County are going to suffer greatly," she said.

Hanoi hotel

SAIGON (AP) — The "Hanoi Hilton," where American war prisoners are beginning to check out is a shabby city jail nicknamed "Hell Hole" by the Vietnamese themselves.

A member of the International Commission for Control and Supervision who was in Hanoi 15 years ago and toured the facility Monday described the prison conditions as "pretty grim."

It is, he said Wednesday, a block-square city jail in the heart of Hanoi that was constructed by the French sometime after World War I during the days when Vietnam was their colony.

The jail has generated wide interest among Americans who wonder where and in what their loved ones were imprisoned. U.S. pilots, some of whom ended up there, baptized it the Hanoi Hilton.

The returning control commission member outlined what he saw during his tour out condition neither his name nor his nationality be disclosed.

He said the prison is called "Ho Lo," slang that translates to the "Hell Hole." But even Hanoi radio picked up the name Hanoi Hilton and used it in its broadcasts on the prisoners and U.S. bombing.

"To an American arriving from the States it would be a hell of a place," he added. "So I think you would have to say that the conditions were pretty grim for those men. But on the other hand, they were no worse than the conditions under which most Vietnamese live, except the confinement."

Touring commission members, in Hanoi for the first prisoner release, walked through a gate in high walls into an area with two courtyards. Off one were three large sleeping rooms, each about 55 feet long.

He said the North Vietnamese claimed the third room would accommodate about 30 men. One room had a raised platform in the middle "which was wide enough for two men to sleep off end to end—so that the men slept in two rows along this raised platform."

A second room of the same size had a similar cement floor but a different arrangement.

"Sleeping platforms were along the two walls and the sort of depression, alleyway, was in the middle," the commission member reported.

On the raised platform there were "wooden pallets which were three or four feet wide, and there was a thin straw mat on top each one."

"Toilet facilities," he said, "just sort of a hole in the floor that you squat over and some them had a honeycomb underneath which was empty by hand—the only toilet facilities of 1920 and France."

"There was a sort of shower arrangement where there were three sets of brackets hanging off the wall and they said they simply brought hoses in and hung them over these brackets that's where the showers were."
